

Meet the designer day

Come and meet award-winning jeweller Andrew Geoghegan, on Saturday May 14 at Artifex Gallery, Sutton Coldfield, from 10am until 5pm.

At the event Andrew will be launching his new design, the Satellite ring – a truly inspirational cocktail ring.

This will be a unique event where you can also view one of the most exquisite ranges of precious jewellery in the UK. From engagement and cocktail rings through to earrings and pendants, Andrew will be delighted to show you the collection and discuss any bespoke commissions you may have.

The event will be held at the Artifex Gallery in the Mitchell Centre for Arts and Crafts. This Sutton Coldfield gallery is a true gem with the most eclectic range of contemporary handmade furniture and fine art in the UK. Sitting alongside these pieces of art is a stunning collection of jewellery, of which Andrew Geoghegan takes centre stage.

Andrew studied three dimensional design at university. This is where he developed a passion for jewellery design, and it soon became apparent he also had a great talent for it. After graduating in 1997 Andrew took several jobs in established workshops repairing and manufacturing jewellery. Although Andrew's skills were utilised his creative talent was not, so in 1998 he took the decision to set up in business, designing and manufacturing his own range of silver and semi-precious stone set jewellery.

Andrew's pieces are designed and made with an attention to detail rarely seen today and he has become one of the most sought-after designers of engagement rings and cocktail rings. At the event people can discuss their jewellery requirements.

Andrew said: "A few years of my life were spent in the West Midlands – Solihull to be precise. So I am delighted to be going back home, well close enough, to Sutton Coldfield for a 'meet the designer' day."

Visitors will also be able to see the latest in jewellery design technology in the form of a computer design programme. This invaluable addition means that customers can see a photo realistic image of a piece well before any tools have even been picked up.

Andrew has achieved acclaim from the jewellery world reaching finalist for Designer of the Year 2005 and 2007 alongside the Platinum Innovation award. This has helped to firmly secure Andrew Geoghegan as a tour de force in UK jewellery design and manufacture.

Artifex are also offering a 10 per cent discount on Andrew's jewellery when purchasing or ordering at the event on Saturday May 14.
